The screenshot shows a multi-step configuration process for a chatbot. The top navigation bar includes a back arrow and four steps: 'Bot builder' (checked), 'Bot Profile' (checked), 'Configurations' (active, highlighted with a blue circle and number 3), and 'Codeless bot builder' (disabled, greyed out). The main content area is titled 'Choose bot audience' and includes a sub-instruction: 'Select the type of visitor to initiate proactive conversation.' There are two selectable options: 'All visitors' (highlighted with a blue border) and 'Custom visitors'. The 'All visitors' option has a description: 'The bot will assist all visitors who land on your website.' and a link 'Visitor type is All'. The 'Custom visitors' option has a description: 'The bot will assist visitors if they match the set condition and criteria.' and a link 'Add rule'. Below these options is a section titled 'When should the bot initiate chat?' with three radio button options: 'When visitors land on the site', 'When visitors click the chat button', and 'When visitors perform a specific action'. A left sidebar contains a list of configuration items: 'Choose bot audience' (active), 'When should the bot initiate chat?', 'Response Interval', 'Chat Inactivity', 'Operator handoff', 'Forward message', and 'Actions'. At the bottom of the main area are 'Back' and 'Create' buttons.

This modal window is titled 'Audience criteria' and has a 'Next' button in the top right corner. It contains a section 'Rules (0)' with a single rule configuration. The rule is defined by a dropdown menu showing 'Lead score', followed by the word 'is' in a separate dropdown, and then a text input field containing 'Enter the score'. Block spammers and cyberbullies

Make a list of terms you deem inappropriate and configure bots to close sessions when they encounter these terms. They can do this without an agent hand-off while also blocking the offender's IP address.

If a visitor uses abusive language while chatting with an agent, the IP address of the visitor can also be blocked manually.

Bring out the best in each other by combining the expertise of each team member.

Chat transfer and group chat

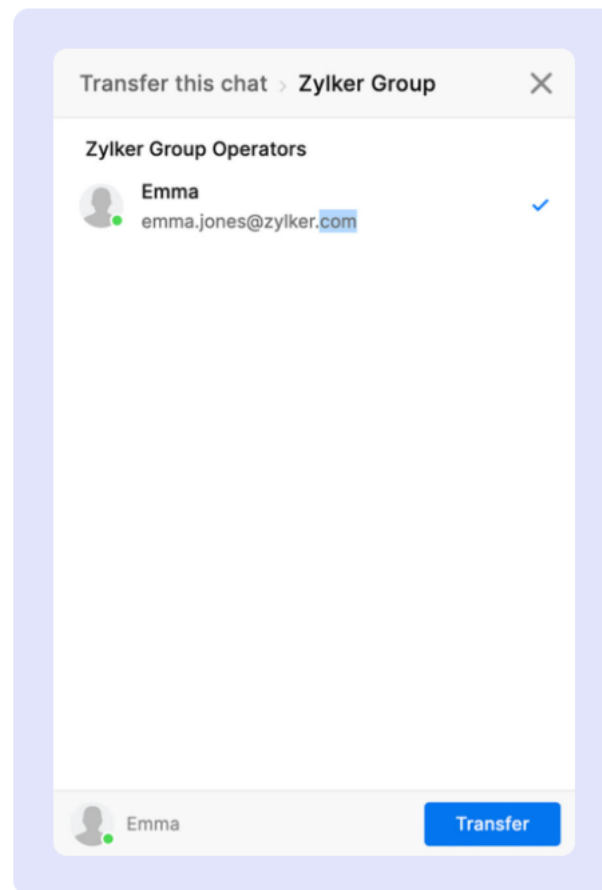

Even with efficient routing, sometimes agents get queries outside their forte. Zoho SalesIQ lets you transfer a chat or simply invite someone with the right answers to join. You can even add a note for the next person as you transfer the chat.

Agent-to-agent chat

To work together well, your team should be able to easily communicate with each other. Our internal operator chat lets agents have one-on-one interactions or talk to each other in a group setting.

Message board

Gone are the days when you had to call a meeting for every announcement. Tell team members about new offers or updates on the internal message board to keep everyone on the same page.
